Why use the "Speed Data" option ?

The users of business intelligence solutions today face new challenges with constantly growing volumes of data, also known as "big data". This can translate into longer response times in data analysis, which impacts directly on users in their daily work.

Access Insight can support you in this transition by offering the Speed Data option. Speed data can be integrated into your business intelligence, reporting or analysis projects with the aim of giving your users what they really need: quick answers in any situation.

Drill down, compile and handle your large volumes of data to get key information in just a few seconds, when it would have taken several minutes under normal circumstances.

The Speed Data option leverages the latest analytical platforms which reduces the need to pre-aggregate the data and lets the user interact with the data in less time – without the need for building inflexible data cubes.
